BITTER FIGHT OPENS UPON ANGLO-IRISH AGREEMENT

HAS ALTERNATIVE

Proclamation Issued By Irish Leader Makes Appeal To People

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 4.—The Dail Eireann adjourned after a stormy scene in the course of which Mr. de Valera denied that he was departing one iota from the position of a republic, declaring that the reason he did not go to London was in order to keep the small republic idea pure.

Mr. de Valera's alternative proposals were issued in Dublin this evening.

The President of the Dail Eireann has definitely decided that Mr. de Valera cannot move an amendment to the treaty. He can only move an amendment to the resolution now before the Dail Eireann.

VALERA'S PROPOSALS

Mr. de Valera's counter-proposals are: A complete alternative treaty consisting of seventeen clauses and various annexes. The clauses are largely identical to the corresponding clauses of the agreement signed in London, the chief difference being the omission of the oath of allegiance.

The alternative treaty acknowledges His Majesty, the King, as head of the association of states of the British Commonwealth, with which Ireland shall co-operate in matters of common concern. It omits provision for the appointment of a Governor-General. An addendum denies the right of any part of Ireland to be excluded from the authority of the Parliament of Ireland and offers North Ireland privileges and safeguards no less substantial than those offered in the London agreement.

TO SUBMIT NEW PLAN

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 4.—A sharp exchange of views in the Dail Eireann occurred today regarding alleged premature references to alternative treaty proposals which Mr. de Valera had given notice he would submit after the ratification division had been taken, and the terms of which up to the present had been zealously guarded. Mr. de Valera ultimately announced unexpectedly that he would submit a document tomorrow as an amendment.

Mr. de Valera later issued a proclamation calling upon the people to stand fast and declaring that the position could yet be retrieved at the eleventh hour.

The proclamation urges the people not to allow themselves to be rushed in their decision which future generations would curse them for, and says that they are being asked to consent to a treaty establishing British authority in Ireland. The delegates were, by the threat of war, dragged beyond the utmost limit to which they could go and the deed and circumstances would ever be remembered by Irishmen as the crowning act of infamy against Ireland. The policy the people stand by will always be practical politics.

Mr. de Valera proceeds to imply that his alternative would absolutely remove the authority of the British King, Cabinet and Parliament from Ireland and concludes:

"Do not allow yourselves to be tempted from the straight and honorable path. If you quail at the consequences what will they not ask you to surrender next to this ignoble bear?"

SIX ARE KILLED

(Evening Star Service)

Belfast, Jan. 3.—Disorders and rioting are spreading throughout the city. A mob fired at a tramcar and the police were forced to employ machine guns to quell the crowd. One man was wounded.

The present disturbances have already cost six lives. One child was shot in its mother's arms.

Wins 50,000 Francs At Deauville, Gathers Up The Roll And Quits

The Aga Khan has the right idea when it comes to gambling. Recently he entered the famous gambling palace at Deauville, which promises soon to eclipse the gambling palaces of Monte Carlo, won 50,000 francs at one sitting, gathered up the roll and, without waiting to stuff the huge amount into his pockets, quit the gambling palace at once.

CONFLAGRATION IN HARTLEPOOL MENACES YARDS

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 4.—A great fire which is raging in Hartlepool started in a big timber store. The gale fanned the flames which soon covered nine acres of land. A number of dwelling houses have been consumed and the great shipbuilding yards are threatened.

The damage is estimated to be over £1,000,000 while 60 houses were destroyed and 500 people rendered homeless.

Later.—The fire at Hartlepool continues to rage and at present threatens to be unprecedentedly disastrous. Hundreds of firemen have been rushed up from the surrounding towns, but are powerless to quell the outbreak and are directing their attention to limiting the area of the conflagration. Six streets have been levelled and seven hundred homeless persons are herded together, in bitterly cold weather, in schools, hospitals and public buildings, while others are actively removing their household belongings in all manner of vehicles to safety.

Early today 40 acres were ablaze and the flames are threatening the engineering and shipbuilding works and millions of pounds worth of property at the docks from which boats are being removed.

Foreigner Attempts To Commit Suicide

A Russian artist, A. Jeroschevsky, believed to have become despondent through poverty, attempted to commit suicide in his room at 22 East Seward Road Wednesday by taking poison. Other occupants of the house interfered before Jeroschevsky had taken a large quanity of the poison and summoned medical aid. He will recover and will be charged with attempted suicide in the Mixed Court.

POOTUNG MILL GOES UP IN FLAMES; LOSS TLS. 400,000

Six Receive Injuries When Pao Yuen Paper Plant Burns Down

PETT'S MEN OUT

Premises Of Cigarette Company Nearby Barely Saved

Fire causing nearly Tls. 400,000 damage and resulting in injuries to six men swept through and practically destroyed the Pao Yuen paper mill at Pootung—probably the biggest establishment of its kind in China—during the early hours of yesterday.

The blaze, which dangerously threatened extensive adjoining property, including the British Cigarette Company's premises, was brought under control only after a frantic two hours' fight by men of the Settlement Fire Department, the cigarette company and the mill staff. For hours afterward the danger was still so great as to require the constant attention of the fire fighters and throughout the day yesterday the men were engaged in damping down and preventing fresh outbreaks from the three acres of smouldering wreckage.

BRIGADE OUT IN FORCE

Great credit is due the Settlement brigade, fifteen members of which, in charge of Chief Officer M. W. Pett, Assistant Station Officer Gilhooly and Sub-Officer Walsh hurried to the scene on the Fire Float shortly after 2 a.m., when notification of the outbreak was received from the mill. Subsequently more men were sent, until there were some forty engaged in battling the flames at 6 o'clock in the morning, and large details were on hand later during the day and last night.

The Pao Yuen plant was located nearly opposite the Hongkew Wharf and was about a quarter of a mile from the waterfront, a fact which precluded efficient work by the fire floats. The greatest assistance was given by the British Cigarette Company's powerful pumps.

The mill staff, which had been quickly marshalled and brought into action by Mr. Bojesen, the manager, handed over their lines of hose to the men of the local department as soon as they arrived.

SPREADS SWIFTLY

The mill buildings, which were about 20 years old, burned like tinder. The fire broke out, apparently, in the beater room—a three-floor section running practically from one side of the main building to the other. It spread through the rope race to the engine room with terrific speed and it was here that the first injuries were recorded. Three engine room men and a dynamo attendant who were in the room were caught before they could escape and burned so severely that they had to be sent to Shanghai for hospital treatment.

OTHERS HURT

The other accidents came later, while firemen were engaged in holding the controlled blaze in check. Chinese Fireman No. 235 while working on top of one of the galvanised iron roofs broke through the roofing and could not extricate himself. Sub-Officer Caynes saw his predicament and started to his assistance. The combined weight of the men proved too much for the roof and it gave way, both firemen dropping over twenty feet to the cement floor below. The Sub-Officer was able to struggle to his feet and make his way out of the building but the Chinese fireman had to be carried to the launch and sent to hospital. Sub-Officer Caynes was badly shaken and bruised.

Chief Officer Pett, Gilhooley and Walsh had an extremely narrow escape at about 5 a.m. when a huge timber crashed down within a few feet of them while they were standing near the gutted beater room. The beam was followed by a shower of galvanised iron roof plates which were precipitated by the collapse.

Under the direction of the Chief Officer of the local department and his aides the firefighters from the Settlement did a magnificent piece of strategical work in the way in which they surrounded and beat back the conflagration. Working in constant peril, close to the fire—especially in the neighborhood of the boiler room—they succeeded in saving godowns 1 and 18 intact, also the offices and range of residences—five in number—which were close to the fire, and most of the finishing rooms, rag cutters' rooms and one boiler room as well as keeping the flames from affecting adjoining property.

The total insurance on the whole block approximates Tls. 800,000 and it is expected that the damage will fall slightly under half of that amount.

MICHAEL KALENIN

To bring the movies to the villages of Russia, the Soviet Government has cinema cars attached to its propaganda trains. Red literature is distributed to all who attend the free movie shows. On the right are two Rusian youngsters laughing at a caricature of capitalism, painted on the side of one of the Soviet propaganda trains which tour the country for the distribution of their literature. Michael Kalenin, President of the Russian Soviet Republic, is shown on the left. Kalenin was a farmer and toolmaker before the revolution. He has long been associated with the radical movement in Russia.

GLADSOME EVENT IS SHRINERS BALL; 1,000 ARE THERE

In a setting of Arabian, or Oriental, or some other exotic style, some 1,000 persons danced and enjoyed themselves last night at the Shriners' Ball, held in the Town Hall by reason of the absence of a nice comfortable patch of desert hereabouts.

The decorations were up to all the exclamatory things written about them heretofore. The varicolored lights deposited in the gilded incense bowls, beneath jewel encrusted insignia of the order, diffused—if that's the word—a sort of gladsome effulgence over the concourse.

The realistic and inspiring oasis evolved by Mr. Landers as an operating base for Harry Kerrey's orchestra in the middle of the floor was up to all specifications, save for the advertised tinkling waterfall, and the midnight supper was beyond expectation, exciting admiration among even the most phlegmatic and dyspeptic, and drawing like a mustard plaster.

The festive happenings were inaugurated by a drill patrol, done under the direction of Capt. H. S. Dickerson of the Nomad Oasis patrol. Immediately thereafter the members of the patrol and their ladies, led by Capt. and Mrs. Dickerson, started the grand march and the dance was on.

Space precludes the encomiums due the committee and others who had to do with the ball, but be it said that if the visiting Shriners from Seattle, for whose benefit the affair was largely held, have half as good a time here they will vote Shanghai as one of the greatest oases, or nomadic playgrounds, still extant.

Provisions Of Naval Treaty Define How Armaments Of Powers Will Be Reduced

Document Believed To Deal With Every Possible Aspect Of Question Of Sea Warfare As Well As Emergencies Likely To Arise

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 4.—The whole drafting force of the conference delegations is now strenuously engaged on the task of drawing up the naval treaty to be signed by the Five Powers, which will be a long and comprehensive document defining as far as possible every aspect of the question as treated by the present conference, defining the decisions reached, and providing for emergencies which are liable to arise in future wars, in which naval operations occur. The treaty is now nearing completion but must receive the full approval of all the powers interested before its presentation at a special plenary session.

PROVISIONS OUTLINED

The provisions of the treaty include the following points:

1.—The limitation of capital ships in tonnage and guns, together with replacement schedules which have been worked out to the satisfaction of the British experts, and in line with the original proposals.

2.—The limitation of aircraft carriers and light cruisers in tonnage and guns.

3.—Rules for use by aircraft of torpedo tubes which can be employed by this type of craft in much the same deadly manner as by submarines.

4.—Regulations affecting the use of merchant ships in war time concerning their possible conversion into armed cruisers.

5.—Regulations concerning the building in privately owned shipyards of the signatory powers of war vessels destined for other foreign powers. This subject is specially complicated and requires very carefully defined rules.

6.—Regulations affecting the use of submarines, provided that a final agreement, as is expected, is reached in accordance with the Root resolutions. It has not yet been decided whether such rules, if agreed upon, shall be inserted in their present form or whether they shall be made into a separate treaty.

OTHER POINTS

7.—Regulations affecting the conduct of Signatory Powers in case of future wars, especially in the case of war with non-signatory Powers. This provision has been particularly occupying the attention of the British delegation which feels that such cases must be carefully and definitely provided for, not with any apprehension of future wars, but in order that the Treaty may be made complete, because in such a war a non-signatory Power which was not bound by the Treaty would be liable to use such methods of war and types of armament from which the signatory Powers are prohibited by the Treaty.

8.—Regulations defining the exact significance of "Refitting" capital ships. It must be laid down what exactly is permitted under this heading; whether for instance guns may be renewed or whether they may only be rebored, whether in case of renewal it is permitted that an altered model of the same gun may be installed, or even whether a slightly larger type may be allowed, whether armor may be repaired or whether it will be permissible completely to rearmor old ships, whether a bulge may be fitted in ships which are not so equipped. Concerning these and many similar points the British experts feel they require an exact definition.

9.—Terms of the duration of the Treaty and the question of an Interim Conference to discuss modifications of the original Treaty, necessitated by future events.

10.—Regulations governing fortifications in the special Pacific zone while the completion of the Naval Treaty is being expedited as much as possible.

CONCERNING CHINA

Attempts are simultaneously made to embody the decisions reached regarding China into the Treaty. Such a pact, if finally decided upon would be signed in any case by eight Powers and it would also be desired that China should sign if she is willing.

The document would probably take the form of a series of resolutions and general statements supporting China and declaring her territorial integrity, coupled with a number of appendices and defining issues which have been cleared up by the Conference.

It is uncertain whether such a treaty would embrace China and her problems only, or whether it would also include the question of the Dutch possessions in the Pacific, and other Far Eastern matters.

FORGET IDEAS OF WAR OR DON'T ASK OUR AID, SAYS U. S. TO EUROPE

View Is Expressed At Washington Cabinet Session That If America Is Invited To Participate In Coming Economic Conference Proposals Will Be Advanced That Will Profoundly Jar Militarists

ANOTHER CONFERENCE IS FORESEEN

Resolution Regarded As Significant Is Offered In Congress Holding Nations Wishing To Build Armaments Should Be Asked To Pay Their Debts

(Trans-Pacific News Service Exclusive To The China Press)

Washington, Jan. 4.—An entire session of the Washington cabinet was devoted to consideration of the economic situation in Europe and the prospect of having the United States take part in the settlement of problems confronting Europe. How America can help in the present European situation was exhaustively discussed.

By one high authority it was suggested that if America is asked to have a part in the European conference the United States will present proposals designed to stir profoundly European militarists. The view is given that the United States will say frankly that unless the various European nations get the idea of war out of their systems aid from American is not to be expected.

The questions concerning the European economic situation are regarded as a link that will connect the Washington conference with another international conference to be held in the future.

Opinion in America holds the view that the chaos in Europe is incurable until big armies are abolished and the problem of German reparations finally is adjusted. It is probable that America will present the reminder that if Germany had not abandoned the method of peaceful progress for that of military conquest the empire would not have fallen.

The view at Washington now is that Europe must learn to think in terms of peace if American help is desired. What is regarded as significant is a resolution that has been introduced in the House of Representatives asking Congress to declare that if certain nations owing huge sums to the United States desire to spend money upon naval armament, "the Government of the United States shall advise such nations that payment of obligations now due will be acceptable."

Congressman Reavis of Nebraska, who proposed the resolution says that if France refuses to reduce her navy America, believing that armaments only can lead to war will be in a position to say that France must build her armaments with her own money and not with that of America.

No formal invitation to America to join the European economic conference has been received, but it is anticipated that the invitation will be given.

JAPS AND CHINESE MEET

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 5.—At yesterday's meeting, the Chinese and Japanese delegates directly discussed three alternative plans for the payment of the Shantung railway. It is stated that the Japanese reasserted their demand for payment through a Japanese loan, which the Chinese declined, declaring that they had not receded from the proposal for payment in cash in 12 yearly instalments.

The situation rested here when the meeting adjourned, with neither side willing to comment on the ultimate possibility of a satisfactory settlement. Dr. Wang declared that the Chinese formally declined to consider a Japanese loan and that they would expect definite acceptance or rejection of either of the Chinese alternatives.

Dr. Wellington Koo denied two reports, one allegedly from a Japanese source and the other from a representative of South China to the effect that the Peking Government was ready to accept the Japanese loan proposal.

Despite the lack of Chinese optimism, British and American officials are hopeful of a successful outcome now that the deadlock has been broken.

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 4.—The communique issued on the conclusion of the discussion on the Shantung question says that the meeting was adjourned until tomorrow when the discussions will be completed.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Admiral Baron Kato has announced that Japan accepts in principle the Root submarine resolutions.

FRENCH ACCEPTANCE

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 4.—The exact nature of the French reservation, in the acceptance of the proposal to prohibit the use of submarines against merchantmen, has not been revealed, but it is thought it may be concerned with the clear definition of the conduct expected from merchantmen in view of their immunity from attack.

M. Sarraut stated that France accepted in principle not only Mr. Root's resolution prohibiting the use of submarines against merchantmen, but also Mr. Balfour's amendment binding the Five Signatory Powers to abstain from such use of submarines in the event of war among themselves. The French delegations also accepted the additional Root declaration that any submarine commander violating this law would be liable to punishment for piracy.

Freight Rule Change Is Made In London

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 4.—An important change in the conditions regulating ship freights, as laid down in the Hague Rules of 1921, has been introduced in the bills of lading of liners.

It is expected that this change will be in operation next month. Shipowners under these new conditions will accept "Carrier's risks." The arrangement will not apply to bills of lading issued in the United States, where the Harmer act is in operation.

PARTLY REVERSE DECISION GIVEN IN TENANCY CASE

Judgment constituting a partial reversement of a previous decision in the British Supreme Court and containing other unusual elements was rendered yesterday by the British Full Court of Appeal in the appeal case of Mr. J. T. Hammond against the ruling of Judge Peter Grain in litigation arising from the lease and renting of property on Avenue Joffre.

The case, which attracted much interest and, in view of latest developments, stands as unusual in the British Court, involves premises leased to Hammond by one Soong at a rental of Tls. 125 a month on terms that either party could terminate the agreement on terms after it had been in existence for six months. Hammond let the premises on August 30, 1920, two years after the original agreement, to one Wellmann for 13 months, at Tls. 225 per month. The lessee was to do all repairs and decoration necessary and deposited Tls. 900 as security. On Dec. 9, 1920, Soong gave notice to quit under the lease. It is not disputed, the Court ruled, that this was good notice to quit. Hammond did not give up possession and on February 2, 1921, Soong wrote insisting on recovery. Action to recover was postponed owing to Wellmann's absence in Europe and on June 6, 1921 Soong issued a writ asking four months' rent and damages for Tls. 1,882 for breach of contract to repair. Hammond sued Wellmann on July 23 for seven months' rent, to which the defendant replied that he was always ready to pay but alleged damage to goods owing to failure to repair the premises, and claimed return of his deposit of Tls. 900. Hammond replied that no notice for repairs had been given and also sued for damages.

As a result of this and further action the Assistant Judge gave judgment for Soong against Hammond for Tls. 1,800 for use and occupation of premises and for Tls. 2,332 damages for breach of contract to repair and costs.

On the co-claim against Hammond judgment was given for the Tls. 900 deposit of Wellmann and for damages to be ascertained in respect of goods injured owing to failure to repair.

Hammond appealed on many grounds, the Court's ruling states. After a lengthy consideration of the procedure the Court accords Soong judgment against Hammond for possession, for Tls. 1,400 and for damages to be ascertained, not exceeding Tls. 2,332—an amendment by the Full Court. In the case of Hammond versus Wellmann (No. 1) there was judgment for the plantiff on claim for Tls. 2,025, with costs; for the defendant on the co-claim for the return of the deposit and for damages to be ascertained, with cost—the one set of costs to be set against the other. In the case of Hammond versus Wellmann (No. 2) there is to be judgment for the plantiff for damages to be assessed, with costs.

Both Judge Skinner Turner and Judge Peter Grain take note in their decision that exceptional steps are being taken in amending the pleadings, Judge Peter Grain, whose previous ruling is reversed in instances, concurs with the decision read by Judge Skinner Turner and remarks in his ruling that Hammond "entered on a great adventure" in undertaking to conduct his case in person. "I had no reason to complain of his want of fluency or volubility as an advocate," the Judge remarks, "but his lack of coherency in his legal arguments made the case exceedingly difficult to try."

Judge Skinner Turner in his remarks also stated that the evidence as given in the court below was not altogether satisfactory.

New Experiment On Uses For Rubber

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 3.—The scientific correspondent of the Times states that highly promising experiments have been made with rubber, expanded by gas into highly cellular form, as an insulator in cold storage. The Times points out that if the anticipations in this connection are realised, a welcome stimulus may be given to the movement to increase the consumption of rubber.

Knickerbocker Girls Block Boston Traffic

INTL.

Boston—or that part of it which does Tremont street at noon—halted the other day without Traffic Officer Swett's admonishing indication. The cause of all the congestion was the Knickerbocker Girls, Jeannette Lucas and Kathleen Jeroth, taking their daily saunter. Some staid Bostonians registered disapproval, as witness the expression on the face of the elderly lady just behind the traffic chief, while others, the majority, we would say, registered approval.

NATURAL HISTORY OF CHINA TEXT OF LECTURER'S TALK

China is the land of monstrosities as regards biological specimens in the estimate of scientists of the western world, according to Mr. A. de C. Sowerby, noted naturalist and big game hunter, who spoke yesterday before a large audience at the meeting of the Royal Asiatic Society.

The land, he stated, is the only one which during present times yields specimens of animals which may be closely connected with the paleolithic and other ancient ages, specimens which are found in the mountain fastnesses and which arouse the greatest interest and give invaluable information to scientific men.

Tackling a field the breadth of which might well daunt a corps of lecturers, Mr. Sowerby yesterday discoursed in interesting and enlightening style on the mammals, birds, reptiles and fish of China. He told of bears encountered in Manchuria which are evidently the forbears of the American grizzly, an evidence of the previous connection, through what is now the Behring Sea, of the two continents. Such bears are still extant on this side. Another surprise was the statement that the camel and horse originally appeared in America, traversing the bridge aforementioned to reach Asia. Fishes and alligators also substantiate the theory of the former connection of the two continents, the lecturer said.

Mr. Sowerby illustrated his talk by exhibiting specimens collected by himself, including some which have been named after him. Birds, rodents, fish and reptiles were included.

During the course of his talk Mr. Sowerby expressed the hope that the local museum will expand, both in the way of its specimen exhibits and in its library. At the present time, he said, libraries here are lamentably shy of books necessary for zoological research.

SALT GABELLE ADMINISTRATION MUST O.K. LOAN

(Staff Wire to the CHINA PRESS*)*

Peking, Jan. 5.—It became known today that negotiations for the $90,000,000 loan concerning which an announcement was made yesterday by the Cabinet have been in progress for the past six months. The project hinges now on whether the foreign officials of the Salt Gabelle will agree to the scheme of funding all existing obligations secured by the salt revenues and will designate the entire surplus for payment of interest and amortisation of the principal.

The amount of the loan, it is said, is to be in the neighborhood of Mex. $80,000,000, not $90,000,000 and the manner in which it will be apportioned by the Chinese bankers and the Consortium—in the event it is accepted—and the terms in general have not been disclosed.

The first requirement is to obtain sanction of the foreign administration of the Salt Gabelle who have demanded the following assurances:

First—That after the entire surplus has been designated as outlined that they shall not be criticised for their action as lately happened with action taken by the Inspector-General of Customs.

Second—That increased police protection be afforded in connection with the collection of the tax.

Third—That the provincial authorities be prohibited from appropriating salt revenues or increasing or remitting them or in any manner interfering with their collection.

The Passing Of The Third Floor Back

A simple little curate was preaching before the Archbishop of Canterbury some years ago and at the end of the service he asked the prelate just what he thought of the sermon. The answer came as follows "I have nothing to say against the text."

Last night the A.D.C. produced "The Passing of The Third Floor Back" and a full house must have made its way homewards with the idea uppermost in the mind that it had nothing to say in criticism against the play.

Jerome K. Jerome was inspired when he wrote that play. He must have had places like our own Model Settlement in his mind when he created the "Passer By." In that character we find a man who by sheer sympathy and force of will is able to turn the pettiness of little people into that largess which is the maker of happiness.

A wonderful play. Beautiful lines. Fine sentiments. A thorough object lesson to this sinful old town of ours and at the same time a delightful entertainment.

But it is towards morning and the day is far spent. It is unfair to say the many things that one would when the clock is insistent, and so we will wait until tomorrow to give a detailed account of a play that must stand as one of the most ambitious as well as the most attractive productions that the local amateurs have given.

The play is to be repeated on Saturday night and from the look of the booking and the enthusiasm with which the performance was received there can be little doubt that the wish for still further shows is unanimous.

Until our detailed critique comes out let us admit right away that "The Passing Of The Third Floor Back" deserves generous patronage because it is a play well worth seeing and hearing and it is certainly well presented.

Japan's Idle Ships Total 124,806 Tons

According to the returns of the Ministry of Communications, the idle ships at principal ports of Japan in the middle of December numbered 364, with a total tonnage of 124,806, which is an increase of eight, of 3,566 tons, as compared with the same period of November. As it is said that more than 600 3,000-ton ships will be required for the transportation of some 250,000,000 square feet of timber from America to Japanese ports from the end of this year, it is expected that a considerable decrease will be witnessed in the number of idle ships.

NO BENEFICIAL WARBY-PRODUCTS SAYS LECTURER

"There was a time when I thought that war had its beneficial by-products," said Mr. Fred B. Smith, prominent New York business man who is touring the world speaking in the interests of international friendship and who addressed a large gathering at the Union Church last evening. "When my country went into the great war I toured all the big cities in the United States and Canada, and even some parts of Europe, saying 'Rally, carry on.'

"Last February, just before my last visit to Europe, I was asked to deliver an address in New York the first Sunday after my return, giving my impressions of Europe during the visit.

"At that time in spirit, though not actually, I prepared the outline of my address. In other words, I knew—or thought I knew—in February, what I was going to tell them in August. I was going to speak of the beneficial by-products of war. But, though I went to Europe for the express purpose of finding these by-products of war, I could not—because they were not there. War has no beneficial by-products.

"War is a loss from the time the first gun is fired until the last baby lies down and starves to death."

Mr. Smith's subject was the "World Peace Program" and after bringing forward various proposals for the ending of wars and showing their defects, the speaker declared that the only agency for the welding together of peoples into a brotherhood of peace, was the church. But all isms must be forgotten and there must be no splitting of hairs.

Mr. Smith will continue his discussion today speaking at 5:30 o'clock at Union Church. Consul-General Cunningham presided at yesterday's meeting and Mr. Henry Hodgkin will occupy the chair today.

China's Industrial Future Holds Grave Problems, Is View Of Bishop McConnell

Methodist-Episcopal Churchman Who Was Prominent In American Steel Strike, Here As Member Of Commission Discusses Labor Problems

That China will have more serious industrial problems to solve than those faced by the West is the opinion of Bishop Francis McConnell, prominent Methodist-Episcopal churchman and member of the missionary Educational Commission at present in Shanghai. Bishop McConnell served as chairman of the Interchurch World Movement Committee which prepared the famous report on the American steel strike. He has acted as mediator in many industrial disputes and is considered an authority on labor problems.

"The changing over from the handicraft stage of production to the factory system is fraught with grave danger to China," Bishop McConnell stated yesterday to a representative of THE CHINA PRESS. "The fact that there is no emphatic public opinion and no central government capable of enforcing factory legislation will undoubtedly make easy the exploiting of the worker. One ray of hope is the organisational possibilities of the Chinese and existence of the guild system. But it seems to me that there is need here for greater emphasis on the value of the individual. No organisation can accomplish much in righting the wrongs of its members if it fails to show interest in each separate case. Lack of regard for the individual is one of the chief weaknesses in the Chinese social system."

FUTURE OUTLOOK

Bishop McConnell believes that China must work out her industrial problems for herself and that little assistance can be expected from outside, as the nation cannot adequately direct the development of another. There is a chance of indirectly influencing the future leaders of China through the mission schools and colleges, but advice handed wholesale from one country to another would be of little value.

"It is up to China's leaders to study the Western capitalist system in order to point out its defects," Bishop McConnell said. "They can then work toward the elimination of factors that have admittedly proven evil, such as child-labor, the twelve-hour day, inadequate supervision of women's work and similar abuses, which at home are being righted by the pressure of public opinion.

"Perhaps the greatest danger in the transition to the factory system is the matter of unemployment. Thousands of men will be thrown out of work by the introduction of labor-saving devices and by the difficulties of adjusting supply and demand. This evil might eventually be righted, but if manufacturing is conducted on a profiteering basis, to cease the moment the return is not exorbitant, there is certain to be a great deal of suffering, leading perhaps to riots and serious national disorder."

Asked if it was not possible that China might develop a new form of production along co-operative lines, Bishop McConnell stated that though the existence of the guild system might make this possible, experience had proved that co-operative societies were rarely successful in marketing their product.

"The difficulty is to induce the person with organising talent to exert his ability without paying him the enormous returns that he receives under the Western capitalist system," Bishop McConnell remarked. "China might conceivably work out such a plan, especially if her best minds can be induced to give some attention to the very serious and pressing industrial problems."

UNEMPLOYMENT CAUSE

Referring to the present unemployment situation in the United States, Bishop McConnell said that it was the inevitable result of the withdrawal of two such good customers as Germany and Russia, to say nothing of the fall of France's credit and that of other European powers.

"As a result of the lessened demand, corn that was selling at $1.70 a bushel in 1920 fell to twenty cents a bushel eighteen months later," Bishop McConnell said. "Even at that low price only a fraction of the crop has been sold. There is great distress among the many who rushed to buy farms at $300 an acre when food prices were at their peak and who are now unable to meet the interest on their mortgages.

"Despite the general unemployment of industrial workers the breadlines are not conspicuously long. Much was said about the workingmen's fondness for silk shirts and diamond horseshoe pins during the era of high wages and undoubtedly there was a great deal of foolish spending. But present events show that much money was also saved. Most of the unemployed are living on their bank accounts. When these disappear, patronage of the soup kitchens will begin.

"The labor unions have not been able to do much in helping to meet the crisis, for they are at present fighting for their lives. Many employers have taken advantage of the depression to enforce the open shop and to take vindictive action against the unions. Clerical workers are also suffering severely, some of them even more than the laborers because having enjoyed no corresponding period of high salaries, they are thus without the sustaining bank account.

PROBLEMS IN U. S.

"Concerted action on the part of the working class in America is more difficult anyway than in most European countries. This is partly because the work of subduing the wilderness produced a pioneer who was distinctively individualistic, and partly because the unskilled laborers are drawn from a dozen European nationalities, all highly suspicious of each other. Even more important than making these men friendly to the United States is the task of making them friendly to each other."

Bishop McConnell stated that the sensational action of Ledoux, who offered men for sale on the auction block in New York and Boston, produced some good results in that public attention was drawn by his dramatic method to an appreciation of the unemployment situation.

One encouraging factor in the situation, according to Bishop McConnell, is the outspoken frankness of the church on the subject of industrial problems. The Interchurch Movement report on the steel strike secured the abolition of the seven day a week shift and the occasional twenty-four shift. The shortening of the twelve-hour day has been promised, though it has not yet been put into effect.

"The habit of calling everybody who was not a hidebound conservative a Bolshevist is rapidly disappearing," Bishop McConnell said. "For a time it looked as if that bugaboo word would delay progress for at least five years, but already people are ceasing to be frightened by it. While not exactly inclining toward radicalism, the bulk of the population is certainly becoming more liberal.

"The church can accomplish a great deal in arousing public conscience, but it must not be expected to do it all. What is most needed is that capital and labor both look at the question from the standpoint of public good and co-operate from a motive of service. While such a solution might seem unduly optimistic, the new wave of liberal thought and the awakening of the church to its responsibility may eventually bring it about."

Bishop McConnell intends to make an extensive study of Chinese labor conditions before returning to America.

Further Hearing In Beddall Case

There was a further hearing in the British Supreme Court before the Assistant Judge, Mr Peter Grain, yesterday in the damage action brought by Mr. E. Beddall against the Shanghai Dock and Engineering Company for alleged wrongful dismissal.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Lipson Ward, for the defendants, the plaintiff stated that he fully expected the company to pay his passage home. Living for two and a half years in the premises provided, he said had reduced him from a robust individual to a wreck. He admitted that there was nothing in his agreement providing for free quarters.

Mr. J. G. Anderson, testifying for the plaintiff, stated that the Pootung quarters were disgraceful and said that he had seen Mr. Beddall when he was very ill.

EDUCATORS ARE DINNER GUESTS OF SOCIAL BODY

Dr. Paul Monroe and members of the Christian Educational Mission, and Professor Woolworth, who will establish a bureau of entomological research in Nanking, were guests of honor at a banquet given at the Yih Ping Shang Hotel last night under the auspices of 24 organisations representative of all shades of constructive influence in the Chinese Community here. Dr. P. W. Kuo, President of the Southeastern University, presided and the speakers were Dr. Monroe, Professor Buxterfield and Professor Woolworth.

Dr. Kuo paid a warm tribute to the excellent work accomplished by Dr. Monroe and the Christian Educational Mission which will be a distinct contribution to educational China, and emphasised the importance of Dr. Woolworth's undertaking in the interest of the agricultural welfare of this country.

Dr. Monroe referred to China's agricultural conditions as ancient, industrial conditions as mediaeval and educational conditions as modern. He believes that the East will make important contributions to Western culture in the future, holding that the center of the world's political influence has shifted from the Atlantic to the Pacific. What the West has given to China for her inspiration is governmental democracy and modern application of science, the speaker said.

Professor Butterfield dwelt on the importance of improving China's agricultural assets and of spreading rural education. He explained that he was primarily concerned in the organisation of a bureau of entomological research whose work will be divided among a body of scientists. He expressed great hopes for waging a successful campaign against the damage caused by insects to China's farms.

Dr. Monroe leaves on Saturday by the Empress of Asia but his daughter will remain in China to teach at the Tsinghua College at Peking.

The members of the Christian Educational Mission will leave in about a fortnight's time.

Sentence Suspended In Forged Check Case

Frank Bahr, German protege and a teacher at Williams College, was found guilty of passing forged checks by Assessor Jacobs and Magistrate Tsang in the Mixed Court yesterday and was sentenced to one year's imprisonment, sentence, however, to be suspended on condition of Bahr's good behavior in future and his payment of the sums obtained by the checks.

It was charged that Bahr, with Mlle. Renee Renaux, said to be the daughter of a prominent French family in Tientsin, passed worthless checks to the total amount of about $350 on various Chinese merchants. The two must stand trial in the French Court for checks said to have been passed in the French Concession.

Mr. F. J. Schuhl, appearing for the defendant at yesterday's hearing called several Shanghai businessmen as character witnesses and the court in consideration of Bahr's promise to make good the frauds ordered sentence to be suspended.

Bearcats Almost Blank Fearon Daniel Co. Five

Win 55-6; Amtraco Beat Am'n School; Public School Defeat College

Two little baskets and two converted fouls were all that saved Fearon Daniels basketball five from a clean whitewashing in their game on the "Y" floor last night with the unbeaten Bearcats. Sheldon scored the losing quintet's 6 points.

The Bearcats ran away from the Hong team from the opening whistle. Simple basketball, played with speed and teamwork and beautiful assurance won the game. There were brilliant passages by Irle and Gray, and there was an absolute covering of the opposition by the whole team.

The first half ended with the score at 29-1. Sheldon had saved his team from a blanking by a careful free throw after a foul for holding. Irle counted nine baskets in the first half and eight more in the second. Gray scored six floor goals and five from fouls. The combination between that pair was a treat to the big crowd that attended.

The first game of the evening went to the American Trading five over the American School team by a score of 30-22. The Trading company men were too active and strong for the schoolboys. The latter also were handicapped, by reason of having been off training and out of the game over the holidays. They played a sharp game, nevertheless, and had their supporters in hopes of a win as the second half progressed.

At Yangtszepoo the Public School boys beat the college faculty, 42-32. Johannson and Brockett each shot nine goals and Levis added three more. For the College King scored two, Hipp four, Anderson seven, Kelhofer one from the floor and four from fouls.

IMPROVEMENTS SUGGESTED TO RUGBY PLAYERS

By "MYSTIC"

At some time or another in the Rugby season it is opportune to reflect upon the game and any possible improvements that may suggest themselves. Two points present themselves to my mind as being worthy of consideration at the present juncture; first, the admission of substitutes for injured players, and, secondly, the intelligent signalling of the score to the public as the game progresses.

There is practically nothing to be said against replacing an injured player, except that it has never been done. Tradition is no valid argument unless it is a good tradition; and even in this case there is no principle involved, because it is not an uncommon thing to see substitutes take the field in a trial match, at half-time, for instance; and I have never noticed that it gave an advantage to the side they joined.

The only objection is the possibility of abuse. I think that such a contingency is most unlikely, because no captain would leave his best players on the touch line for half the game: but granting that, it can easily be provided against. Let it be laid down that a substitute can be imported only if the player has been incapacitated during the progress of the game, and if the two captains consent to it; failing an agreement, the referee should decide.

It is unnecessary to bring the player into it, because there are cases (concussion, for instance), where he insists on going on when everybody else knows he shoudn't.

As a piece of evidence which may be used either for or against this proposal, I may mention that it has been accepted in American football for years. However we may regard it, something would be accomplished if we eliminated the possibility of a side gaining an advantage by rough play; such things have been known, even in Rugby.

Now for point number two. Certain teams object to their players being numbered; and I don't think the player who receives the 13 ticket usually values it. There are good reasons against numbering, I know; I should be inclined to suspect a forward, for instance, whose number was always being quoted on the touchline. But what is to prevent our authorities copying the method of recording a score at cricket? Let the players be numbered—on the card only, and let the number of the player who gets a try or kicks a goal be hoisted at the same time as the points are recorded. This would meet the wishes of both parties and prevent erroneous reports being issued.

A week or two ago the London Scottish halves wore the wrong numbers, and practically every report got the names wrong, of course. An official scorer would prevent that.

Porter Defeats Bush In Sensational Game 800-793

Goes To Finals With Winner Of Tonight's Match, Johnson Versus de Campos

A touch of nerves, or the exercise of too much caution when victory was almost within his grasp lost the semi final and perhaps the Shanghai Amateur Billiard tournament for Mr. E. D. Bush last night at the Masonic Club to Mr. C. W. Porter, the present champion. Bush had the score at 793 up with Porter, and with the balls in easy position it seemed certain that he would run out to the final 800, when he failed on a ball played too safely.

The match had been Bush's throughout. He led off in easy stride to the first hundred mark while the champion had scored but 79. At the 200 mark Porter was still short on his first 100. The play was nip and tuck between 200 and 300 with each player taking the lead in turn. At 400 Bush led with a 48 unfinished by 28 points. After dinner Bush took a lead of 120 points. At 700 Porter was 161 behind. The climax came when Bush had a nice lead with 784.

It was at that stage that the champion's billiard nerve and eye began to count. A. 42, a 72, a 38 and a 30 and a few smaller counts had given him 793. Bush got the balls after a difficult shot into easy position and seemed a certain winner, until in attempting the 794th point he failed on an easy shot by cueing the ball too slowly. Porter ran the seven last points in easy style.

BIG CROWD ATTENDED

The match was followed by a crowd that taxed the Masonic Club. Interest was held by every shot of the players. While Bush was leading, the spectators were waiting and watching for the champion to come through, or wondering whether or not he was done as a premier cue man.

When Porter by his steady piling up of points on considerable runs in the latter stages of play began to overtake Bush's lead and the 800 mark neared, all nerves, excepting Porter's were on edge. When Bush attempted his last run and got to within seven of the goal each shot was followed with bated breath. When Bush lost his run and Porter ran out a warm storm of congratulation was given to both players.

Both men played careful billiards, using each and all of the

PEKING MANDATES GIVE AMNESTY TO ANFU HEADS

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Jan. 2.—The New Year mandates issued by the new government which were three in number are causing wide comment.

The first of the trio grants amnesty to the six Anfu military leaders for the "mistake" which they made a year ago at the time of the students' riots. The pardon is granted in view of the services of the men in the training of troops and at the request of Chang Huai-chih, chief of staff. Their cases are referred to the general staff of the ministry of war, which supposedly means their restoration to rank.

Hsu-hsu-cheng and Chang Chin-yao, the civil offenders, were not mentioned. Among the six pardoned, Tuan Tze-kwei alone is at the Japanese legation where they sought refuge. Chang Shu-yuan, former governor of Shantung, is in Tsingtao; Chen Wen-yun is at Lushan; Wei Chung-han is in the foreign concession, and Chu Tung-feng has been in custody of Marshal Tsao-kun since his capture on the field by Wu Pei-fu.

The second mandate is an octrol on rice and wheat entering Peking and reduces the railway tariff on shipments. This has secured the favor of the Peking populace and the new cabinet.

In the third manadate, provincial governors are ordered to undertake immediately a program of road building in order to provide a national system of modern highways administered by the Ministry of the Interior.

games strokes apparently without favor. Strangely nearly every run or miss was on the easier shots, while difficult tries were made to look easy. Porter scored the highest runs, 86, 72, 66 and 49. Bush counted many smaller breaks reaching 48 twice. Both men averaged 9. Bush got into his game earlier than Porter. The latter was going strong toward the end. He counted 186 in five times to the table in the final play.

The breaks, in their order, follow:

Bush—29, 24, 20, 26, 40, 43, 26, 48, 25, 22, 21, 34, 29, 24, 48

Spot and forward bar silver were each up 3-8d. in London yesterday. The New York price advanced to 65 cents, and the London-New York cross rate declined to 419⅝.

The only change in the official quotations here today was a drop in the Gold Dollar rate to 71¾. Our market here today was steady, and business was done at practically the same rates as those ruling yesterday, although there was somewhat more of a demand for Gold Dollars than was the case yesterday.

Sterling for January was done at rates varying between 3-6 and 3-6¼, for February at 3-5⅝, and for March at 3-5⅝. Gold Dollars were done for January at between 74 and 74¼, for February at 73¼, and for March at 72¾.

There was again practically no premium today for cash as compared with January, and banks were at all times willing to make the turn-over at 1-8 of a penny in their favor, but there were few takers on this basis.

The rise in silver in London yesterday is attributed to bear covering, India and the Continent again sold. There are sellers in the New York market at the official quotation, and no buyers. The general undertone of the silver market seems easy.

There was only a moderate demand at this week's auction, and prices realised show an all-round decline of about 3 cents.

Awarded Standard Sheet fetched 36½ cents, which marks a decline of 3 cents on the week. One lot packed in cases changed hands at 37 cents.

Sheet equal to Standard declined about 2½ cents, but was shown a fair amount of interest, and some lots fetched even the price paid for Awarded Standard Sheet.

As regards Off Quality Sheet, only the better parcels were wanted.

Crepe equal to Standard was wanted at 36 to 35½ cents.

Canton And Recent Events

BY ORRIN KEITH

IN no corner of the world have the recent developments at Washington and at Peking been watched with more interest than at Canton. The signing of the Quadruple Agreement, the disarmament agreement, the resignation of the Peking representatives and the reorganistion of the Peking cabinet are all fraught with significance to Canton and the Constitutionalist Government. So rapidly have these events followed one upon another that opinion has not fully crystallised among the Canton leaders. Some are cautious about coming to conclusions until more detailed reports are available. Others, with a recklessness born in some cases of youth and in others of old age, are quite ready to announce forthwith their opinions upon each and all of these major events. It is not possible therefore to give a clear cut presentation of what Canton thinks of recent developments but it is possible to estimate the present trend of thought.

The Quadruple agreement was at first very generally condemned. This was perhaps due in part to the constant reference to it in the press as the "Quadruple Alliance" and the implication that its purpose was the joint protection of the various interests of the four signatory Powers in the Far East. On this assumption the Cantonese opposed the new treaty. An Anglo-Jaapnese Alliance was bad enough with only two Powers. Here was a new Alliance with four Powers and among them the one they had always looked upon as China's best friend. It was therefore bad for China—more than twice as bad as the Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

It has not been altogether easy to get away from this point of view even in the light of later information and the full text of the agreement. That it is no worse than the Anglo-Japanese Alliance from China's standpoint is conceded. Beyond that opinions differ. Some hold that it is practically a renewal of the old agreement with two more Powers adhering. Others agree that it is of benefit to China in that it eliminates the old agreement which has been the source of so much trouble for the Republic. The more liberal element feels that on the face of the new instrument it is an improvement upon the old one. They point to the fact, however, that the Anglo-Japanese Alliance did not include any provisions for aggression upon China; that in fact it guaranteed China's integrity and yet it became the cover under which more was done to disrupt China than in all the rest of her years of contact with the West. Therefore, whether the Quadruple Agreement is a benefit or a detriment to China depends entirely upon the spirit in which the Powers concerned interpret it and the manner in which they act under it. If Japan renews her aggressive tactics and the other Powers feel that their hands are tied by this compact as Britain felt that hers were under the dual agreement, then has Japanese militarism achieved its crowning success and China's death warrant is signed.

Getting down to specific points in the treaty, there are three matters which have drawn the attention of the Chinese. The first is Hongkong. The second is Formosa. The third is the islands at the entrance to Kiaochow Bay. Hongkong and Formosa were once Chinese and as such there is a measure of irredentism in regard to them. But this is neither strong nor widespread. For the most part they are looked upon as the penalty which China has had to pay for defeat in war. They were ceded by treaty and that is the end of it—for the present at least. Shantung, Manchuria and Mongolia, however, the Chinese feel were not ceded by treaty but have been stolen from them by a system of militaristic buccaneering. No nation has any right to any part of them and if the new treaty assures the Japanese possession of the islands at the mouth of Kiaochow Bay and thus leaves the control of that harbor to Japan even should she evacuate the peninsula of Shantung, then here is a point sufficient in itself to condemn the new agreement.

This provision, however, does not arouse the resentment that comes from the agreement of the four Powers to exchange views upon any "Pacific" problem under certain conditions. To the Chinese China is the Pacific problem. The new agreement means, then, that at any time the Washington Conference may be reconvened; the subject of discussion may involve the fate of China; and China will not be represented. It is here that the Chinese feel that the influence of America would be diminished by her ratification of the treaty. They believe America would be in a stronger position both for the protection of China's interests and her own if she were outside the new entente and not a member of it.

More serious by far than the Quadruple Agreement is the disarmament plan. Here, according to Chinese opinion, the Republican administration has sacrificed both Chinese and American interests in the Far East for the advantage of a talking point in the next campaign. 5-5-3 has already become a phrase to conjure with in America. It means disarmament and it apparently means at the same time the possession of a safe margin of sea-power for either America or Britain over Japan. In the Far East it has another and far more sinister meaning. It means that Japan has achieved without expense a greater proportion of naval power than she has ever had before and a higher ratio than she could have hoped to attain in the event that naval construction had remained unrestricted. It means that Japan, by her threat to build a navy sufficient to cope with America on the high seas, has got America to scrap enough ships to give Japan not only security in the Far East but absolute domination in that part of the world. That is, it is understood by the Chinese that a 5-3 ratio between America and Japan is not a sufficient preponderance on the part of America to enable her to take the offensive against Japan in Eastern waters. The result is that Japan can henceforth do as she pleases in Asia unless America violates her own disarmament agreement or can secure the co-operation of Great Britain in restraining Japanese ambitions.

On top of these momentous happenings comes the news of the resignation of the Chinese representatives at Washington. A few are inclined to accept at their face value or near it the protestations of the members of the delegation as to the treatment they have received at the hands of the Conference. These point to the fact that China has gained nothing but a few sops in the way of a future removal of foreign post-offices, the agreement to investigate the question of extraterritoriality, etc., while the great essential, the crux of the whole matter, the one thing without which the Conference must be absolutely futile so far as China is concerned, the abolition of the Twenty-One Demands agreements, has been quietly shelved, if not ignored altogether by the direct negotiations over Shantung.

The more general view, however, is that the resignation of the delegates was forced by the ineptitude of Peking, and that the whole affair has simply demonstrated again what needs no further demonstration, that Peking is not the government of China but a tool of Japan. According to this group, the Japanese brought pressure to bear upon Peking to enter into direct negotiations at Washington, a thing Peking dared not do at home. Peking, not being its own master, was forced to consent and instructed its delegates accordingly. Negotiations commenced but when the news reached China the old opposition to this course was renewed with increased fury. Demonstrations were held all over the country. Meetings of protest passed resolutions denouncing the course pursued by the Chinese delegates and many of these made no bones about informing the unfortunate envoys that if they made any agreement with Japan they would never be allowed to set foot upon Chinese soil again. This rather ominous attitude was brought home to the delegates with even greater force by the opposition of the Chinese who live in America, ninety-five percent of whom are either Cantonese or southern sympathisers. Damned if they did and damned if they didn't, the delegates saw no way out but to resign. As the real reasons were none too creditable to Peking meaningless incidents were magnified into insults and offered as the cause of their withdrawal. Peking, still under instructions from "a certain nation," refused to accept the resignations and there the matter rests, with both the delegates and China in a most undignified position.

Meanwhile Peking is having troubles of its own. Morally bankrupt for many a moon, it has now reached the point where its financial breakdown can no longer be hidden from the world. Ignored in Washington, the butt of half China, and with but a shadow of authority over the other half, the old cabinet had to go. President Hsu issued a circular telegram in typical mandarin style in which he bemoaned his own shortcomings and expressed his desire to retire to private life. But he held on to his office nonetheless and work has begun upon a new cabinet under Liang Shih-yi, a man who is especially detested in the South.

And with all this a bit of comedy. Ex-Secretary Lansing had asked Canton upon what conditions a reconciliation with the North would be possible. Dr. Wu Ting-fang stated that it was out of the question even to begin negotiations until President Hsu gave up his illegal tenure of the presidency and until a sincere effort was made to get rid of the Twenty-One Demands agreements. These conditions were evidently wired to Peking and W. W. Yen, then acting as Premier ad interim, telegraphed Dr. Wu stating that his conditions had been complied with; the first by President Hsu's circular telegram, and the second by the presentation of the Twenty-One Demands matter by the delegation at Washington.

Dr. Wu immediately replied that the perfunctory action of the delegation at Washington could not be construed as a sincere effort to release China from the burden of the Twenty-One Demands agreements and that the entry into direct negotiations contrary to the will of the nation was a contradiction of that condition. Then he asked the acting Premier upon what date President Hsu's resignation took effect. It remains to be seen what effect this will have in Peking. President Hsu certainly did not resign in his circular telegram. It was simply a mandarin moan. Premier Yen says he did resign. Which will go—the President or the Premier? Or will Peking adhere to the traditional lines of the farce-comedy and keep them both in office?

One senses a feeling in Canton which may be described as suppressed elation. No one expresses the idea. There are too many slips between the cup and the lip. But the feeling is there—that the series of debacles at Peking is rapidly bringing nearer the day of Canton's opportunity. Surely the Northern militarists have about played the game to the end. Surely the Powers, out of sheer self-respect, will refuse longer to aid and abet the reign of the lords of misrule in the northern capital. And just as surely must they turn to the Constitutionalist Government as the real representative of China when Peking can no longer even keep up the pretense of representing her. The Constitutionalists do not dare let this feeling get the better of them. They know full well the uncertainties of Chinese politics. They understand full well that the Powers move in the direction of least resistance—to their own aims—and they are holding themselves well in hand. But they feel that Destiny is rapidly turning the pages of the book of history in these days and that soon she will come to the chapter headed "The Constitutionalist Government."

PUSSY AND THE CONSORTIUM

(Reuter sends word that Peking is seeking Consortium loan of ninety million. By post comes from a correspondent the following clever lines on that "Pussy" parody).

WHAT THEY OUGHT TO SAY

We love the Consortium,
It's words are so warm;
And if we don't buck it
'Twill do us no harm.

So we won't treat it rough
Nor drive it away;
But Consortium and we
The game subtlely will play.
We love the Consortium,
It has so much dough;
And if we're obedient
It's dollars will flow.

So we'll play with it nicely
And work hand in hand;
For it's to our advantage—
Until we get canned.

BUT

What They Do Say

Nix on the Consortium,
As nice as it looks;
For foreign control
We can't have on our books.

So we'll borrow at home
And we'll keep what we've got
To ourselves, for in China
The Consortium is not.

THE WRITER MUST BE ON HIS HONEYMOON

—The bride is a woman of wondrous fascination and remarkable attractiveness, for with manner as enchanting as the wand of a siren, and a disposition as sweet as the odor of flowers, and spirit as joyous as the caroling of birds, and mind as brilliant as those glittering tresses that adorn the brow of winter, and with heart as pure as dewdrops trembling in a coronet of violets, she will make the home of her husband a paradise of enchantment like the lovely home of her girlhood, where the heaven-toned harp of marriage, with its chords of love and devotion and fond endearments, sent forth the sweet strains of felicity that ever thrilled the senses with the rhythmic pulsing of ecstatic rapture.—Michigan Journal.

A certain paper referred to two learned gentlemen as "bibulous old files" instead of "bibliophiles."

Needless to say the editor got into hot water, and in preparing his apology he wrote: "The learned gentlemen are too fastidious." To the editor's horror the printer distinguished himself again by printing: "The learned gentlemen are two fast idiots."

Britain To Aid Idle Workers

(Special To The China Press)

London.—Suffering from widespread unemployment proportionately as great as America's England today is mobilising every resource to revive foreign trade and gradually absorb something less than 2,000,000 workless, or semi workless into productive labor.

Almost every branch of industry is stricken with a kind of semi-paralysis. Experts disagree as to the underlying causes, and cannot agree on the cure.

Meanwhile influential business circles are issuing grave warning that unless Europe's political bickering ceases, and agreement is reached between France and Germany, no one can foretell the limits to which the present slump will extend.

In the midst of general gloom, however, there is considerable rejoicing over the fact that England's unemployment problem is gradually becoming less acute, and that the dangerous situation created by the recent bitter coal strike has, to a large degree, been elevated.

Today—as far as unemployment is concerned—England is in approximately the same position as last April, when the coal strike started its lengthy course that at one time threatened to tie up all activities of the country.

In April there were 1,615,607 workless, while the figure for mid-September, according to Ministry of Labor statistics, was 1,502,600.

This shows an excellent recovery from the dangerous unemployment situation during the midst of the coal strike when there were over two and a half million workless and semi-workers.

Nevertheless, the present cloud of depression is a matter of deep concern for everyone in the country.

London, for example, with 150,000 workless congregated so closely together that mob-like demonstrations of 15,000 to 20,000 are easily organised by agitators, is deeply worried over the future.

Meanwhile, in the business world, some comfort is found in the general wage slashes that have been accepted throughout the country.

Officials point out these cuts do not mean the individual worker must lower his standard of living. On the other hand, his present wage buys the same quantity and quality of foodstuffs and other necessities as did the more inflated wage.

Advantage comes to the nation, however, in facilitating production of British goods at lower prices and gives England a better chance in competition for foreign trade.

Daily conferences of cabinet members have been held to thresh out ways and means of putting England's workless thousands into useful production.

One rather original scheme the cabinet's committee on unemployment approved was pledging the government to pay a portion of the interest on new loans secured for approved undertakings that would require additional workers.

This applied to revenue producing corporations and to revenue producing companies, the latter being given more liberal assistance than the former.

Rockefeller Aids Philippines

(Special To The China Press)

New York, Jan. 3.—The Rockefeller Foundation today announced that its International Health Board has accepted the invitation of Manuel Quezon, Senate President of the Philippines, to cooperate in the reorganisation of the Philippine Health Service. Individual members of the staff and specialists in tropical diseases will be sent to the Philippines to aid in the work.

TO AID LEPERS

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, Dec. 28.—The thousands of Philipinos suffering from leprosy are to be given more attention, particularly more treatment and more food. Dr. H. W. Wade, of the faculty of the College of Medicine, University of the Philippines, who recently spent some time at the Culion Leper Colony, where 5,000 persons suffering from the disease in all its stages are kept almost as prisoners, has prepared a report for the governor general in which he recommends radical reforms.

Until very recently the lepers were considered to be victims of an incurable disease and the only energy spent on them was devoted to segregating them from the other people of the islands, but now the authorities are awake to the fact that this disease is curable and official concern is beginning to be shown for the sufferers themselves. The reforms recommended are: More doctors, more nurses, better feeding, better hospital facilities, treatment for more of the sufferers and a full realisation that they are human beings.

LACK SUFFICIENT FOOD

Miss Harpley Embrey, food specialist for the Rockefeller Foundation, who recently came here from China, on a visit to Culion found that many times the lepers were forced to go long periods without sufficient food supplies. They have to depend largely upon fish and when the weather is stormy and fishing poor the supply of food runs short, particularly when the providing of substitute foods was neglected. Under-nourishment not only caused suffering among the lepers but weakened then until they more readily became victims of numerous other diseases in addition to leprosy.

For a colony of five thousand, kept on the little rocky island of Culion, there were only eight doctors, ten nurses and five Catholic Sisters, the latter serving as volunteer practical nurses.

NEED MORE DOCTORS

A hospital filled with three hundred sick people has only one doctor. Hospital wards are overcrowded at times and the suffering of the sick is intensified as a result of the neglect to which they are subjected. Dr. Wade urges the need of eighteen more doctors and twenty more nurses. Miss Embrey is now at Culion trying to work out a scientifically balanced ration best suited for the lepers.

The Government has appropriated pesos 200,000 for leprosy treatment but it is estimated by those who have studied the situation that this amount should be increased by fifty percent for the first year. A few Americans are among the lepers at Culion.

Giant Cactus ("Tree Of Life") Photographed By Explorers

Photographs of what is thought to be the largest true cactus ("tree of life") in the world and queer forms of insects have been gathered by explorers in South America, who, under the leadership of Dr. Henry H. Rusby of the School of Pharmacy of Columbia University, are now making their way into the depths of the Bolivian jungles.

This cactus, according to wires received from Dr. Rusby to the university, rises to the height of a good-sized tree, and has a limb spread of forty feet or more. Among the collections which he will bring back with him on his return to the university, will be a specimen of this "tree of life"—this name being a literal translation of the Spanish name, "Arbet de la Vida," given to the "Bolds" plant, so-called because of its use by the natives for medicinal purposes. Photographs have been taken of it which will be given to the public as soon as they reach the United States.

Many interesting forms of insect life have also been collected. With these, as in the case of plant life, specimens collected in one of the deep Andean valleys may differ entirely from those of a similar valley closely adjacent.

The scientists, who were sent out by the Mulford Biological Exploration of the Amazon Basin, report the loss of supplies and ammunition in the swift streams of the Andes.

The journey from Espia, at the head of navigation on the Bopi River, down to Huachi was uneventful and was accomplished successfully except for the loss of five boxes of provisions, including most of the precious stock of ammunition. The loss of the ammunition leaves the explorers in a rather precarious condition, as they were depending on it for obtaining not only scientific museum specimens of rare birds and small mammals but also to supply the camp with fresh meat. They will doubtless feel the need of this ammunition when they pass through certain sections inhabited by more or less hostile Indian tribes.

The waters of the rivers are charged with dissolved mineral matter and suspended particles washed down from the mountains. It is unfit for drinking purposes until the suspended particles have settled out and the water sterilised. At one place the Columbia dean reports purchasing a whole muleload of oranges to provide the party with orange juice for drinking purposes so as to avoid using the water of the streams.

This last massage from the Columbia dean, who at the age of sixty-four is braving the perils of the tropics in the interest of science, was written from Huachi, on the Bopi River, in Bolivia. In this vicinity, late in August and early in September, the scientists made excursions and obtained valuable collections, four of them journeying up the Cochabama River and "finding many things of great scientific and economic interest."

The members of the party were all reported to be in good health and enjoying their experiences. According to plans outlined in Dr. Rusby's message the expedition was heading for Rurrenabaque, Bolivia. By this time, it is thought, the expedition is forcing its way into the depths of the Bolivian jungle in the vicinity of Lake Rocagua.
